What better location for a thriller/horror with deep spiritual vibes than in a quaint little old southern town called Vicksburg in Mississippi?

Will the Rebels win or the damn Yankees? Lucifer or God Almighty?

It all begins after a daring escape from a V.A. psych ward across the Big River.

Some folks enjoy the sunset outdoors. Others shun nature and opt for the gaudy side of town.

The protagonist drives past a cemetery. The antagonists are nearby – at a healthcare facility (excuse me – but did I just say that?) Except – this hospital is abandoned. Haunted!

Certainly no shortage of awesome homes for a location in Vicksburg. All of them haunted!

All that matters is that you can escape to the cemetery.

Say what? The house next door burned down – a century ago – and nobody dares to rebuild?

Now, about that damned feline ~ where's she off to now?
